

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

For operating a positioning device of a multi-axes processing device having at least one processing for improving its positioning accuracy, a position change of the processing device and the associated processing head is controlled with a computer, work poses of the processing device and the associated processing head controlled by a computation and control unit of the processing device are detected, and the work poses are adjusted if necessary.